WILLIS HOWE.

. . . success in . . . the . . . illustration of . . . that . . . rundown . . . the body . . . is every . . . of this great remedy men and women who keep themselves reasonably well informed in the world's progress refuse to be martyrs to such well understood troubles as sleeplessness, rheumatism, neuralgia or kidney disease. Paine's celery compound is used with perfect assurance in those households where only an intelligent authentic remedy can get any consideration. As a spring remedy nothing compares with it.

As physicians are all the time saying, the pain over the kidneys, headaches and the misery of nervous debility should be met by Paine's celery compound. Its invigorating action is at once felt by the irritated worn out nerves and brain. It makes new blood. It brings fresh strength and vigor to tired, wornout men, weary women and to sickly children. For those diseases which are the result of weakened nerves, such as dyspepsia, headaches, neuralgia and heart disease, Paine's celery compound is the only logical, permanent cure. It feeds the wasted nerve tissues and regulates their action. It tones up the entire digestive tract and encourages the body to take on flesh and to increase the volume of pure blood in the arteries and veins.

SHOCKING TRAGEDIES.

Four Persons Shot at Farm at Mukwanago, Wis.

Young Man Fatally Shot Former Employer and the Hired Man.

One Woman Can't Recover—Posse of Farmers Threaten Lynching.

Milwaukee, Wis, May 7. Early last evening William Pouch, 23 years of age, a farm hand who worked for Mr Harris of Mukwanago about two years ago, called at the house and requested lodging over night. He was taken in, given supper and assigned a room. About 5 o'clock Mr Harris and the hired man, Nelson McHolt, arose and went to the yard to milk the cows. Mrs Harris and the hired girl remaining to prepare breakfast.

Pouch left his room quietly and going to the yard where the men were milking drew a revolver and fired at the farmer, killing him almost instantly. The murderer then shot McHolt in the body.

The man fell motionless to the ground and Pouch evidently supposed him dead also. Pouch calmly left his victims where they fell and walked leisurely to the kitchen of the farm house. There he met Mrs Harris and the hired girl and chatted with them. He said Mr Harris would not be in for a few minutes and that he would partake of his breakfast at once. The woman waited upon the murderer, who seemed to relish his meal. After concluding his breakfast, Pouch shot Mrs Harris in the breast and then fired at the hired girl, Helen Vosbach, aged 20 years. The farmer's wife fell to the floor with a fatal wound and expired soon afterwards. The hired girl has a chance of recovery.

After finishing his bloody work the murderer robbed the house and then mounting a bicycle rode away. He started in a southwesterly direction. A posse of farmers is in hot pursuit and the chances are he will be captured. They openly vow that they will lynch the murderer.

The supposition of the authorities is that the man is either insane or that he committed the terrible deed in order to hide evidence of another crime.

A Later Report

Later reports from Mukwanago state that Mrs Harris may recover.

There is little hope for Nelson McHolt, the hired man, and Helen Vosbach, the girl. Their wounds being considered fatal.

SOPHOMORES WON.

Annual Harvard Class Boat Race Friday—The English Stroke Led

Cambridge, Mass, May 7. The sophomore eight won the annual Harvard boat race between the class crews on the Charles river this afternoon. The juniors were second, 1900 third and the freshmen crew brought up to the rear. The time was 10 minutes and 20 seconds for the two mile course.

A stiff east wind was blowing which kicked up considerable rough water and retarded the progress of the eights. It was a pretty race, though the rough water made good form impossible.

It is a significant fact that the three leading crews rowed the new English stroke introduced by Coach Lehmann, while the seniors, who finished last, were coached by Casey, a professional. At the finish 99 led '00 by three quarters of a length of open water.

Negro Killed by Pistol Shot

Boston, May 7. James Ashe, a colored man, 22 years old, died at the Massachusetts General Hospital at noon today as the result of a pistol shot wound in the neck. The wound was inflicted on Wednesday night on Phillips street, in the West end.

He said he was shot by his white wife Dolly, and she is now in jail accused of the crime.

Spalding Pleaded Not Guilty

Chicago, May 7. President Charles W Spalding of the defunct Globe Savings bank was brought into court today to plead to 29 indictments against him, mostly charges of embezzlement. He entered a plea of not guilty to each of the indictments and was then sent back to his cell in the Cook county jail. He has not yet been able to secure bondsmen in the sum of $300 000.

Probable Accidental Deaths Discovered Friday.

Aged Woman and Small Boy Were the Victims of Asphyxiation.

Neighbors Broke Into Cottage at Asbury Park and Found Them

New York, May 7. The dead bodies of Mrs Fannie Scott, of Yonkers, N Y, and her five years old nephew, George McKenzie, whose parents live at Mott Haven, were discovered this morning in Mrs Scott's summer cottage at Asbury Park, N J.

Mrs Scott opened her cottage about three weeks ago taking her grand nephew with her on account of his health.

They were last seen alive Wednesday. Neighbors wondered where they had gone and today broke into the cottage.

It is believed the woman blew out the gas, stop cock or by mistake left it before retiring.

Mrs Scott was 70 years old.

WASHINGTON NEWS.

Agreement on Indian Bill

Washington, May 7. The conference committees of the Senate and House today reached an agreement on the Indian appropriation bill. The differences between the two houses on the Senate amendment for the opening of the Uncompahgre reservation were reconciled on the basis of the provision for the leasing of the gilsonite lands instead of the purchase of them. The compromise agreement authorizes any person to take one claim on lease and hold it in perpetuity upon the payment of a royalty of 50 cents per ton on all the gilsonite mined. There is however a provision against trusts which was inserted upon the motion of Senator Pettigrew.

This provision forfeits to the government claims of holders who enter into a combination to limit production or raise the price of gilsonite. The Senate amendment for the establishment of an Indian warehouse at Omaha was also agreed to with a provision extending the time for its establishment to a year.

The Seneca oil lease is confirmed and one additional judge is allowed in Indian Territory.

Sundry Civil Bill

Mr. Cannon, of Illinois announced today that the sundry civil appropriation bill will be called up for consideration in the House next Monday if it is found there is a quorum present.

Investigation of Navy Yard

Assistant Secretary Roosevelt will leave Washington early next week under orders from Secretary Long to make a thorough investigation of the New York navy yard, with special reference to the laboring force and with a purpose of correcting any injustice that may be the subject of well founded complaint.

The department does not expect any startling results from this investigation but deems it best that the inquiry be made in answer to the allegations of unfair treatment lodged with the Secretary by friends of employes reduced or dismissed.

PRINCESS . . .

Greece Formally Asks the Mediation of the Czar.

Collective Note of the Powers Not Yet Received by Greece.

Capture of Volo by the Turkish Forces Seems to be Certain.

If Powers Insist on Evacuation of Crete by the Greeks

Greece Will Reply She Prefers War to Extermination.

Athens, May 7—(Evening). The intervention communication from the powers have not yet been received.

The Greek government has been notified that the Greek fleet has established an effective blockade of the coast of Epirus.

Turks Found Pharsalos Deserted

Headquarters of the Turkish Army in Thessaly, Pharsalos, May 6 (Delayed in transmission). When the Turks entered Pharsalos this morning they found the place utterly deserted.

The Turks are beginning to believe the Greeks are serious in their fighting as Larissa was so strongly fortified that they believe its capture if resolutely defended would have been impossible.

The Greek artillery fire during the Turkish advance was wonderfully accurate. Nevertheless the Turks advanced singing and without heeding the shells.

During the attack on Velestino some of the Turks picked up stones saying "These are good enough for the Greeks."

The scene half an hour before dark was awesome and imposing. The Turks had determined at all costs to drive the Greeks out of the town. The constant flashes of the field pieces illumined the faces of the gunners who were eagerly watching the effect of each discharge through the gathering darkness while on the opposite side was a long thin line of spluttering infantry fusillade. As night fell, the firing gradually ceased and by seven o'clock it was quiet. The Turks threw themselves on the ground and slept.

Only thirty Turks were killed and 200 wounded during the fighting.

Greeks Driven Back

Pharsalos, May 7. An engagement began early today near Velestino and lasted several hours, the Greeks being finally beaten back.

They have retreated upon Volo sharply pursued by the Turks.

Edhem Pasha Starts for Velestino

Paris, May 7. A despatch from Larissa received here by an Ottoman official says that Edhem Pasha with his staff started for Velestino this morning.

Col Vassos Goes to Greece

Cologne, May 7. A despatch from Canea says Col Vassos and five officers have embarked for Greece.

To Protect Volo

Volo, May 7. The consuls have decided to ask the foreign warships to land detachments and have promised to protect the town.

Greek Prefers War to Extermination

Athens, May 7. It is stated positively that if the powers insist on the withdrawal of the Greek troops from Crete as a condition of mediation Greece will reply that she prefers war even to extermination.

Further Recall From Crete

Athens, May 7. The government has decided to recall 25 officers and two companies of sappers from Crete.

Mediation of Russia Formally Asked

Berlin, May 7. The Lokal Anzeiger says that the King of Greece has formally asked the mediation of the Emperor of Russia.

To Save Volo

Athens, May 7. The Greek fleet at Volo has been instructed to hinder the entrance of the Turks in order to save the town from destruction.

Gen Smolenski's artillery, engineers and some cavalry have proceeded to Almyros by sea.

Crowds of volunteers continue to arrive here and 2,000 Italians, led by Riciotti Garibaldi, left for the front.

Capture of Volo Seems Certain

London, May 8. A despatch to the Times from Velestino dated noon yesterday says: "The Turkish forces have reached the outskirts of Volo. As yet there is no confirmation of the rumors that the town has already fallen, but in any case its capture is only an affair of a few hours."

On to Domokos

Constantinople, May 7. Orders have been telegraphed to Edhem Pasha to push on to Domokos immediately.

Turks Show Great Strategy

London, May 8. The correspondent of the Times at Pharsalos says: "Great skill is displayed in the strategy of the Turks. Six divisions from Trikkala and Larissa are being simultaneously concentrated at Pharsalos.

"The Greeks having retreated upon Volo the whole length of railway connecting Trikkala, Velestino and Larissa is now in possession of the Turks."

Retreat Caused Consternation at First

London, May 7. The Athens correspondent of the Times says: "The news of the retreat from Pharsalos was at first received with consternation, but the public has already accepted the situation and now regards the retreat to Domokos as a strategic movement dictated by prudence.

"The main body of Gen Smolenski's force arrived this (Friday) morning at 11 o'clock at Almyros."

Boston and Maine Earnings

Boston, May 7. The report of the Boston and Maine R R, for the quarter ending March 31, shows net earnings of $1 378 036, an increase of $220 077 over the corresponding quarter of 1896. The surplus account March 31, was $40,612, as against a deficit of $151,016 for the corresponding quarter in 1896.

WAS TIRED OF EXILE.

Forger Thomas H. Stout Gives Himself Up.

In 1891 He Was Short in Accounts With Wall Street Brokers.

He Fled When His Rascality Was Discovered, Going to Europe

New York, May 7. Tired of being a fugitive, Thomas H Stout, forger, after six years of exile, surrendered himself today to District Attorney Scott.

In 1891 Stout was the confidential man of Kennett, Hopkins & Co, brokers on Wall street. While he was ill at home for a few days it was found that there was something wrong with his accounts with the Holland Trust Co.

A warrant was issued for his arrest and he fled.

The amount of his shortage was estimated at $20 000. Stout forged the firms' endorsement to paper which the trust company cashed.

Today Stout reached New York from Boston. He had come from England. Stout was arrested and bail was placed at $10 000. Being unable to furnish this he was locked up.

BASE BALL.

Harvard Defeats Cornell—Boston Shuts Out Senators—Other Games

Louisville, May 7. The Colonels had no trouble in defeating the Browns today. Hart was hit hard when hits meant runs, while Frazer kept the Browns hits well scattered. Clarke's three bagger with bases full was a feature. Score: Louisville 11, St Louis, 7. Hits 14 to 10. Errors, 2 to 2. Batteries: Frazer and Wilson; Hart and Murphy.

Heavy Hitting

Pittsburg, May 7. Both teams played their heaviest hitting game of the season. Pittsburg's 13 hits netted 21 bases, and Cincinnati's 12 carried with them 19 bases. Score: Pittsburg, 7; Cincinnati 6. Errors, 1 to 2. Batteries, Killen and Sugden; Breitenstein and Peitz.

Senators Skunked

Boston, May 7. Washington was whitewashed by Boston today in a rattling good game. Errors were scarce. The batting was not particularly heavy, but the fielding was sharp. McJames struck out five men to one for the Boston pitcher. Collins' work at the bat was excellent. Attendance 2,300. Score: Boston 1, Washington 0. Hits 5 to 2. Errors, 2 to 1. Batteries, Sullivan and Ganzel; McJames and McGuire.

New York Won.

Brooklyn, May 7. Extravagant errors and a clean hit over the left field fence by Bill Clark, who is now playing left field for New York, were the only features of the second contest between the Greater New York clubs today. Score: New York 7, Brooklyn 2. Hits 11 to 8. Errors 6 each. Batteries: Meekin and Warner, Payne and Grim.

Baltimore on Top

Philadelphia, May 7. Baltimore and Philadelphia had an old fashioned batting game today and Baltimore came out on top. Attendance 6318. Score: Baltimore 13, Philadelphia 11. Hits 15 to 13. Errors 3 to 2. Batteries: Corbett and Robinson; Fifield, Wheeler and Boyle.

Russia's Sympathy

Paris, May 7. President Faure has received a despatch from the Czar expressing His Majesty's sincere sympathy with the families of the victims of the bazaar fire, and stating that Russia has been profoundly moved at the catastrophe.

Farewell Banquet to Bayard

London, May 7. The farewell banquet given this evening by the American Society in London to Mr Bayard, former ambassador of the United States, was attended by 270 guests. The company included Ambassador Hay, Mrs Hay and all members of the American embassy, the Lord Bishop of London (Dr Creighton), Baron Russell of Killowen, the Lord Chief Justice, Sir Francis and Lady Jeune, Sir Edwin Arnold, Sir Henry Thompson, Lady Randolph Churchill, Lady Anderson, Mr and Mrs Ralph Vivian and Miss Genevieve Ward, the actress.

Mr Bayard had a cordial reception. He brought with him the log of the Mayflower. He took Mrs Hay in to dinner, Ambassador Hay taking in Lady Jeune. The Lord Bishop of London in a felicitous speech proposed the health of the President of the United States. Newton Crane toasted the guests of the evening. During the presentation of the loving cup, which is in the form of a pumpkin surmounted by a bust of Mr Bayard, Mr and Mrs Bayard were visibly affected. Mr Bayard on rising to respond to Mr Crane's sentiments was greeted with a storm of applause.

He spoke for an hour, slowly and impressively. Mr. Bayard insisted eloquently that there was no cause of quarrel between the two nations.

Baron Russell, in proposing the health of Ambassador Hay, said: "The United States have sent us their best man to represent them, and we have no doubt the chain will be kept unbroken."

Col Hay responding, said: "It would be appropriate to call Mr Bayard not so much ambassador to England as ambassador to the English. I join you in wishing him and his family god speed."

A Step That Failed

London, May 7. In the House of Commons today a motion to reduce the salary of the Marquis of Salisbury by £500 ($2 500) was introduced in order to bring about a debate on the Eastern question. It was rejected by a vote of 169 to 63.

Belfast, Me, May 7. In caucus this evening the Republicans elected Burleigh delegates to the district convention.

Burleigh Delegates Elected

Waterville, Me, May 7. The thirteen delegates chosen to the Republican 3rd district convention tonight were instructed to support ex-Gov Edwin C Burleigh as the candidate for Congress to succeed the late Congressman Milliken.

Protection of Fur Seals

Washington, May 7. Hon John W Foster, special ambassador on the part of the United States to conduct negotiations for the protection of the fur seals, was in conference with the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations for two hours today, during which time he went over the situation quite thoroughly, putting the committee in possession of all the information in his possession and advising them of his plans.

Details of the conference were not made public, but it is known that the conference was based upon Great Britain's refusal to enter into any agreement for the further protection of the seals.

Mr Foster indicated his purpose to enter into negotiations with Russia and Japan looking to the accomplishment of his purpose. He will leave the country soon in pursuance of his mission and will go to London.

The committee took no formal action, but there was a general expression of approval of the plan to deal with Russia and Japan.

Princeton Wins Debate With Yale

New Haven, May 7. The Yale-Princeton debate tonight was won by Princeton unanimously.

It was a sharp forensic contest, but Yale had the wrong side of the question.

The subject for debate was "Resolved, That the power of the speaker of the United States is detrimental to the public interest." Yale spoke for the affirmative.

Edward H Hume was Yale's opening debater. He was followed by Yocum, Fisher, Reeves, Smith and Sterling. The judges were Hon Josiah Quincy, of Boston, Hon George H Waring, of New York, and Hon Carroll D Wright, of Washington.

Excitement in Lewiston During Fight

Lewiston, Me, May 7. In a fistic exhibition at City Hall tonight Allie Brown of Lewiston, easily defeated Gus Manuel, colored, of Portland, in the third round of an eight round go. Manuel weighed 10 pounds less than Brown and fought foul.

In the third round one of Manuel's seconds attempted to strike Brown with a chair from outside the ropes. Manuel in floor ng Brown in a wrestle bit him in the shoulder. Referee Travers awarded the fight to Brown amidst excitement.

College Debate Postponed

Lewiston, Me, May 7. The Bates-Colby debate has been postponed.

Fire in Westbrook

Westbrook, Me, May 7. J Clarke Scate's stock in his drug store was ruined by fire tonight. Loss about $3 500.

A Fable and a Sell

A street car man reported to the police last night that a drunken man was laid out below Wood & Bishop's foundry on the Hampden road and that he had tried to arouse him and drive him home, but in vain.

Officers started for the scene in the patrol wagon and found a big black dog stretched across the sidewalk instead of the expected man.

Furthermore the foundry watchman said he saw the street car man go by and he made a detour to avoid the supposed intoxicated individual. Officers disgusted—watchman amused—dog indifferent.

SATURDAY, MAY 8, 1897.

STATE OF MAINE.

ARBOR DAY.

A PROCLAMATION

By the Governor.

The statutes of our State wisely declare that the Governor shall annually set apart a day in the spring as Arbor Day, for the planting of trees, shrubs and vines. Shade trees and shrubs add much to the beauty of our cities and villages and to the comfort and elegance of our homes. To the end that their planting should be encouraged by concentrated action, this day has been established. I therefore appoint MONDAY, the tenth day of May next, to be observed as Arbor Day, and I recommend that all the people of our State show a commendable zeal in promoting the objects for which this day is designed, by devoting the time to planting ornamental trees and shrubs along their streets, in public parks and other places and around their homes.

Given at the Executive Chamber, in Augusta, this thirty-first day of March, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and ninety seven, and of the Independence of the United States of America the one hundred and twenty-first.

LLEWELLYN POWERS.

By the Governor,
BYRON BOYD,
Secretary of State.

Governor Black has signed the new charter and Greater New York thus becomes an established fact. The first election under the new charter comes in November next.

Governor Wolcott and his Executive Council do not agree as to the results of the recent investigation of the Police Department in Boston. The Governor asked for the removal of General Martin, the chairman of the Police Board, but the Council by a vote of six to three refused to sanction the removal.

In the reorganization of the Senate committees Maine gets additional recognition. Senator Hale, who has been the nominal head of the Naval Affairs Committee for some years past, is now its actual head, having been selected chairman in place of Senator Cameron. The selection is a merited honor and shows that Maine is appreciated in Congress.

It is reported that Mr. William Jennings Bryan has laid out for himself a tour in foreign countries, in order to equip himself for the campaign of 1900. He will go first to Mexico, where they enjoy the blessings of a silver currency, and then to Europe, where they are cursed with the gold standard. On his return he will be able to point out from experience and observation at first hand the advantages possessed by Mexico over Europe or the United States or any other gold standard country. The danger is that his eloquence will set on foot such an exodus of voters to Mexico that there will not be enough left to elect him President.

The Popular Issue.

Harper's Weekly, otherwise known as the "Journal of Civilization," declares that the most striking feature of the political situation is the evidence of party disintegration, but at the same time assures the people that the country will be saved as the New York Reform Club is on guard and if the old parties persist in going out of business will furnish a body of sound principles that will rally supporters.

Ever since that "enthusiastic dinner" papers like the Journal of Civilization have been laboring to impress upon the people the tremendous influence exerted by the faction represented on that occasion. If we are to accept the statements of these gentlemen they elected McKinley in 1896 and propose to defeat him in 1900. Harper's Weekly states it in this way:

> Opposition to free coinage was the issue upon which McKinley was elected. Support of a high-tariff policy alone would have left him short of a vast army who voted for him on the silver issue.

This leads to the natural inquiry how did free coinage become the Democratic issue? Solely from the fact that the Democrats were afraid to go before the people on the tariff issue alone. Until this new question was injected into the canvass there was not a Democratic paper of any standing from one end of the country to the other that did not discount the result of the then pending election. Here then we have an amusing contradiction of the claim now put forth that McKinley could not have been elected on a high-tariff policy alone. It was the strength of that policy that led Grover Cleveland to abandon the tariff and turn to the currency question in the hope of setting up a new issue that might for a time, at least, distract public attention from the dismal failure of his Administration. It was not intended to turn the party over to the control of the silverites, but merely to give the country a sufficient currency scare to bring that question into particular prominence.

The scheme was too successful for its own promoters. When the Cleveland wing of the party dropped the one issue on which it had any claim to consideration, abandoned that which it had repeatedly asserted was the all-absorbing problem of the day, the logical result followed and the free silver element at once took possession of the convention, that being the prevailing currency idea of the party in general. This is the history of the free coinage issue and it suggests another inquiry. If the New York Reform Club and its followers in the ranks of the Democratic party were utterly unable to confine the currency scare within the limits originally contemplated; if in other words its influence was unequal to a family contest does it not bring out in a pitiable manner the absurdity of attempting at this late day to make this little free trade faction greater than all parties? The Republicans were successful last fall because the people want the protection policy restored, and if the Journal of Civilization will examine the columns of the Southern papers it will see that this sentiment is by no means confined to the Republican party. Clevelandism has been a greater educator in this respect.

The Senate Changes.

The Washington correspondent of the New York Post writes: "There is a better feeling toward the Senate tariff. [illegible] in the near future a reciprocity clause will be offered as an amendment, which will intelligently cover the ground in that most important feature of the tariff legislation. The striking out of the House reciprocity clause, therefore, is not so sweeping a departure as was at first supposed.

"In private the defense of the Republican Senators who composed the sub-committee is that they were compelled to do many things in order to get the bill out of committee they would not have done if they had a party majority vote. Most of the concessions granted they are willing to stand by, such as the increased duty on lead ore and the tariff on hides, and borax.

The New England members have served notice that they will make a fight against the hide duty, but from what can be learned they will fail in the Senate and House when they try that issue. There is not heard anywhere an opinion that tariff legislation will fail, nor is there a doubt that when the Dingley bill finally is agreed upon by the two Houses its schedules will be of a character satisfactory to a majority of Republicans. Senator Frye has been assured that the striking out of the exemption on Hawaiian sugar from the provisions of the House bill will not be insisted upon. The Republicans will insert the exemption at the proper time, and the reciprocity treaty with Hawaii will stand. The Senator from Maine says that the committee knew a resolution to abrogate the Hawaiian treaty would be offered, and they thought it best to leave the matter open.

He accepts the assurances that the exemption clause will be restored. If it is not he will make a motion to that effect, and he will have such a following as to impress the Senate with the danger of trying to force him aside.

There is great anxiety to get the report of the Senate Finance Committee. Senator Allison is now as busy in the management of appropriation bills pending before the Senate as he recently was in tariff revision. The duty of writing the report will therefore fall upon Senator Aldrich. He has not determined whether to put his views in writing and have them printed for the information of the Senate, or to save his explanations for the speech which he will make on the opening of the tariff debate. It is probable that he will choose the latter course.

JOHNSON'S UNIVERSAL CYCLOPEDIA

Covers the whole round of Science, Literature, Art, History, Politics, Theology, Philosophy, etc., in about 50,000 articles, written specially for it by the most eminent men in each department—men who sign their articles, and whose names carry weight.

CHARLES KENDALL ADAMS, LL. D.,
President of the University of Wisconsin,
EDITOR-IN-CHIEF.

Thirty-six Eminent Scholars and Specialists as Department Editors.
Three Thousand Contributors.

EXTRACTS FROM TESTIMONIALS:

From W. T. Harris, LL. D., U. S. Commissioner of Education.
The new edition is a decided advance in Cyclopædia making, and a set of this work ought to be found in every school-house, and the pupils ought to be taught how to use it.

Librarian of Harvard University.
There is perhaps no better test of merit of a Cyclopædia than its usefulness in such a library as ours at Harvard; and here Johnson's Universal Cyclopædia has, during many years of experience, been found more useful than any other in the English language.

George C. Chase, D. D., LL. D., President of Bates College.
I believe it to be the best working Cyclopædia in the English language.

A. W. Harris, M. A. Sc. D., President of the University of Maine.
The names of the editors of the revised edition are a sufficient assurance that the revision is well made.

Nathaniel Butler, D. D., President of Colby University.
For all the purposes for which a cyclopedia is needed in the home, the school, the library, and the study, I know of none that is so entirely satisfactory as Johnson's Universal Cyclopedia.

Hon. W. P. Whitehouse, Maine Supreme Judicial Court.
I regard it as the most concise and trustworthy, and altogether the most desirable for ready reference of all cyclopedias on the market.

Hon. W. W. Stetson, State Superintendent of Schools.
The New Johnson's Universal Cyclopedia is pre-eminently the cyclopedia for the school, the home and the office.

L. D. Carver, State Librarian.
I have always Johnson's Cyclopedia in preference to any other. The new edition again places the work before the public as the leading cyclopedia of this country.

Mary S. Snow, Superintendent Schools, Bangor.
I can recommend it more heartily than any Cyclopedia I have ever seen.

Rev. Geo. B. Ilsley, Bangor.
It gives me pleasure to state that I have used, much to my satisfaction and profit, Johnson's Cyclopædia for the past eight years, and that I hesitate not to accord to it my decided preference, especially the new edition which is now being introduced. I heartily commend it to all who are seeking to purchase a cyclopædia.

Geo. C. Purington, A. M., Principal Farmington Normal School.
We have found it an excellent work, full and accurate, and more useful than Chambers's, the Britannica, or the American.

Hon. Wm. P. Frye.
I have examined "Johnson's Cyclopædia" with considerable care, and have no hesitation in commending it as the best, most accurate, and comprehensive reference book to be had.

Hon. Nelson Dingley, Jr.
I have carefully examined the two volumes of Johnson's Universal Cyclopædia recently issued, or revised, by D. Appleton & Co., and find them to be not only a great improvement on the former editions of a work which I always regarded of exceeding value, but even well nigh perfection as a ready reference on almost every topic and every prominent public man.

Hon. A. R. Spofford, LL. D., Librarian of Congress, Washington, D. C.
Johnson's Universal Cyclopædia is found, in the Library of Congress, to answer more questions satisfactorily than any other work of reference.

Subscribers can have the set by making payment in small monthly installments.

WHAT THE CRITICS SAY:

Oxford University, (England.)
Professor A. H. Sayce, the eminent Philologist, June 15, 1895: "The Standard Dictionary is truly magnificent, and worthy of the great continent which has produced it. It is more than complete. It is certain to supersede all other existing dictionaries of the English language."

Harvard University.
Professor A. Preston Peabody: "Will prove of invaluable service, and will last while the English language remains essentially unchanged."

Johns Hopkins University.
Professor William Hand Browne: "In accuracy, clearness and fullness, within its prescribed limits, it surpasses all similar works."

Cambridge University, (England.)
Professor J. E. Sandys, February 20, 1894: "It is an admirable work, and deserves to become famous on both sides of the Atlantic."

University of Chicago.
Professor W. C. Wilkinson, January 6, 1894: "It is a magnificent, a monumental success. My confident impression is that the editors have produced the Standard Dictionary."

Princeton College.
Professor J. O. Murray, Dean, October 10, 1894: "I have no hesitation in pronouncing it most complete in all departments of lexicography. It deserves all the high commendation it has received in America and in England."

University of Michigan, (Ann Arbor.)
Professor Thomas M. Cooley, March 19, 1895: "It justifies its name—Standard. It is everything that could be desired."

Nature, (London, Eng.)
J. Norman Lockyer, Editor: "It passes the wit of man to suggest anything which ought to have been done which has not been done to make the Dictionary a success."

GRECO-TURKISH WAR.

Greeks Have Position of Great Strength at Domokos.

Terrible Losses by Greeks in Retiring Across the Plains.

London, May 7.—A special despatch from Athens says a telegram has been received there from Prince Constantine, saying:

"Our new position at Domokos is one of great strength. We are resolved to hold it at all costs. The retreat from Pharsalos was rendered imperative by the overwhelming numbers of the enemy and was effected without mishap."

Fought Desperately Until Nightfall

"Headquarters of the Turkish army in Thessaly, Pharsalos, May 5.—(Night)—(Delayed in transmission)—The Greeks, in retiring across the plains toward the town, suffered terrible loss from the murderous fire of the Turkish artillery. During the retreat, the Greeks were compelled to cross the river by a single bridge. As the Greek troops were massed at that point, the Turkish artillery wrought fearful havoc among them. Nevertheless the Greeks fought desperately until nightfall.

Smolenski's Brigade at Almyros.

Athens, May 7.—No news has been received up to an early hour this morning as to the whereabouts of Gen. Smolenski, whose brigade of German troops was engaged with the Turks at Velestino. It was thought the Turks were attempting to prevent him from retreating upon Volo or Almyros. The government has ordered the ironclad squadron to send several torpedo boats to obtain news of the missing brigade.

Later—A despatch just received from Almyros announces that Gen. Smolenski's brigade arrived there this morning after having effected a retreat from Velestino in good order.

A Panic at Lamia.

A panic prevails at Lamia which is now on the base of supplies for the Greek forces at Domokos. Many of the inhabitants are fleeing from the place, fearing an attack by the Turks. Three vessels brought refugees from Lamia to the Piraeus yesterday evening.

Shelled Turkish Camp.

Salonica, May 6.—(Delayed in transmission.) The Greek fleet today dropped a number of shells into the Turkish camp at Kassandra, but they did no harm. The Greeks did not try to effect a landing.

Marching Upon Volo.

Larissa, May 6.—Night (Delayed in transmission.)—During the day many wounded Turkish soldiers were brought in here from the front and they confirm the report of the capture of Velestino by the Turks and report that the fighting has been severe. A Turkish brigade is marching on Volo, which is expected soon to be in the hands of the Ottoman troops.

Mediation Viewed with Favor by Turkey.

Constantinople, May 7.—An official communication reiterates that the excesses attributed to the Turkish troops at Larissa are infamous calumnies and that the report of the Turkish evacuation of Trikhala is not founded on fact.

The proposed mediation of the powers between Turkey and Greece, is viewed with favor by the Turkish government.

Three of the men who have been on trial charged with participating in the massacre of Armenians in the streets of Tokat, have been sentenced to death. Four others received terms of from three to 10 years' imprisonment.

The authorities of Erzeroum have been ordered to hold 21 regiments of the famous Hamidieh cavalry in readiness in case they are wanted for service in Thessaly. A battalion of Redifs has been sent to the island of Mitylene, as a precaution against a possible landing of the Greeks there.

The Turkish government, last night, received the following official despatch from Pharsalos:

"At dawn, the imperial troops having attacked the enemy occupying Pharsalos defeated them and captured the town. A division of cavalry pursued the enemy on the road to Domokos and the division of Khairi Pasha has been ordered to advance in that direction. The Greeks left ammunition and provisions at Pharsalos."

Little Resistance Expected.

Washington, May 7.—Minister Terrell at Constantinople under date of yesterday cables the state department that a telegram from Edhem Pasha states that he captured Pharsalos yesterday morning, and that he was pursuing the Greek army at Domokos. The mountain passes below Domokos could be easily defended, but it is reported that the Greek army is greatly demoralized and that it will offer but slight resistance, if any, to the advance of the Turks.

Another Despatch.

Washington, May 7.—The Turkish legation has received a despatch from Constantinople, supplementing that announcing the occupation of Pharsalos. It says: Today at dawn (Thursday) the imperial troops having attacked the enemy, located at Pharsalos, who had in part commenced to fly during the night, whipped them and took possession of the town. The cavalry division pursued the enemy on the road of Domokos and Khairi Pasha's division has been ordered to proceed in that direction. The Hellenes left at Pharsalos ammunition of war and provisions."

KILLED BY A FALL.

Charles A. Brown, of Portland, Pitched from Second Story Window.

Portland, May 7.—Charles A. Brown, president of the Umbagog and Androscoggin Pulp companies, and a very prominent business man, fell from a second story window in his own house this forenoon and was killed.

Mr. Brown has been in poor health this winter and this morning had his breakfast served in his own room. After the breakfast was removed he was left alone for a time and his lifeless body was next seen on the lawn below his window. It is supposed that he leaned out, lost his balance and had not strength to save himself.

Mr. Chas. A. Brown was 60 years of age, and was born in Derry, N. H. He was in the coal business in Lawrence, Mass., in his early life, coming to Portland in the 70's and engaging in the wood pulp business, with which he has since been connected.

He was a director in the Sebago Wood Board Co., the Androscoggin Pulp Co., the Otis Falls Pulp Co., the Umbagog Pulp Co. and Indurated Fibre Co.

He leaves a widow and nine children, the youngest son being at Harvard college.

Doctor Exonerated.

Atlanta, Ga., May 7.—At a very heated session of the Atlanta Medical society yesterday the charges preferred against 13 leading physicians of this city for violation of professional ethics fell through for lack of prosecution. The instigators of the charges wished to withdraw them when they learned that the publication of the report of the remarkable surgical operation performed by Drs. Pinckney, McRae and Nicholson a few weeks ago, by which they opened the skull so as to give an imbecile child's brain full development, was a piece of routine news and not inspired by the surgeons. It is said that the child will soon gain her normal mental powers.

Will Pay Eighty Per Cent.

Nashua, N. H., May 7.—Judge Isaac W. Smith, trustee for the Class H bonds, New Hampshire Trust Co., now in the hands of a receiver, states that the bonds will eventually pay 80 per cent. There are $3,000,000 of these bonds issued, principally held in Northern New England, and secured by about the same amount in mortgages. Assignee Peaslee of the trust company, states that Class B bonds, of which there are $260,000 worth in circulation, will be wiped out entirely as these bonds are backed by the company only, and the company has failed.

WASHINGTON NEWS.

Senator Cullom Favors Tariff Commission.

Washington, May 7.—In reply to inquiries as to his views on a permanent tariff commission, Senator Cullom has written a letter to the tariff commission league, Newark, N. J., in which he says:

"I have for many years thought that there ought to be some method devised by which we could avoid the constant and extreme changes in tariff legislation, at first, going first in the direction of a high tariff and, on the occasion of a change in politics, going as far the other way. I believe that through the judicious agency of the permanent tariff commission, composed of experts, statesmen and business men, such changes could be made from year to year by Congress as might be indicated and clearly shown to be wise. This would save the necessity of requiring a change of the whole tariff system by whatever party came into power.

"Certainly we cannot do things so definitely as we have been doing with reference to that subject, because the business of the country will [illegible] it."

PECULIAR ACCIDENT.

Boy Killed by His Two Years Old Brother.

Amesbury, Mass., May 7.—Dr. Cooper, secretary of the board of health, was notified today of a remarkable fatality which occurred here Wednesday night, when Fred Hamel, the four-year-old son of Napoleon Hamel, died as the result of a blow from an axe, delivered by his two-year-old brother. The little fellow was injured a few days before, and at one time it was thought he would recover.

The boys while playing got hold of an axe, in their father's yard, and the youngest picked it up. In some way hit his brother, who was kneeling on the ground alongside. It struck him in the head, causing it is thought, concussion of the brain. The parents of the children did not report the affair, but today the authorities heard that the child died at midnight and was buried yesterday.

Medical Examiner Hurd of Newburyport will probably be requested to order a coroner's investigation of the circumstances in connection with the case. The body will be exhumed if necessary, although little can be done in the matter owing to the youth of the child who was responsible for the death of his brother.

Napoleon Hamel, the father of the children, is a French Canadian, and is a wood-chopper. The family consists of Hamel, his wife and six children.

New York Democrats Preparing a Plan for Union.

New York, May 7.—It is learned that the Tammany Hall executive committee will take its formal step today towards making a combination with the machine Democrats of Kings, Queens and Richmond counties. A subcommittee will probably be appointed to confer with Hugh McLaughlin's men and prepare a plan for union. According to the talk, no effort will be made to form a single organization covering greater New York. The local machines will continue to exist, and a general committee will be appointed to supervise all of them. This is the scheme agreed upon by Sheehan and McLaughlin, and likely to be adopted. The Tammany men insist that they will insist on naming the candidates for mayor and controller. In other respects they are willing to give McLaughlin a good share of the [illegible].

Later an agreement may be made for the distribution of offices in the event of the election of the Tammany candidate for mayor. There will be some [illegible] and some dickering [illegible] stake in view, and it is not likely that Sheehan and McLaughlin will risk it by any lack of harmony.

Mrs. Bixby's Will to be Contested.

Nashua, N. H., May 7.—Boston counsel has been engaged in the probate of a will of Mrs. [illegible] Bixby, whose husband made a fortune in the [illegible] business in Boston. Harry M. Bixby, president of the Nashua Card & Glazed Paper Co., and the widely known expert shot and tennis player, is the chief contestant, he being the eldest son.

The bulk of the estate, valued at [illegible]000, was left to John [illegible] Bixby, the youngest son. George Bixby, landlord of the Park Square Hotel and Bixby House, Boston, the second son, was left only $1,500, but he will not contest the will.

One Hundredth Anniversary of the Consecration of Bishop Bass.

Boston, May 7.—Episcopalians today are quietly observing the 100th anniversary of the consecration of Rt. Rev. Edward Bass, the first Episcopal bishop of Massachusetts. Special services were held at Trinity church. [illegible] Bishop Bass was a descendant of John and Priscilla Alden, was educated at Harvard and ordained by the bishop of London.

When the Revolution broke out he had been rector of St. Paul's church, Newburyport, for 25 years. He was in a quandary as to which side to support, as his congregation were Tories. He compromised matters by not referring to politics in the pulpit and only when absolutely necessary in private, and then in a reserved manner.

Holy Communion was celebrated at Trinity church, and Bishop Lawrence delivered a notable address, in which he embodied much valuable lore of affairs pertaining to the history of the Episcopal church of America and to the early religious and civic life of Massachusetts.

The students of Cambridge Theological school attended the service in a body. In the audience were prominent laymen and clergymen from the New England states and the south.

The procession was one of the features of the occasion. It was headed by Bishop Lawrence and Bishop Coleman of Delaware. Then followed visiting clergy, clergy of the diocese, laymen who are prominent in the church, and the students of the theological school.

Wyoming Ranchmen Organize.

Cheyenne, Wy., May 7.—The ranchmen of Jackson's Hole and the Teton Basin country have organized a [illegible] to keep sheep owners from invading the region during the coming season. A committee of safety has been appointed, which has published this notice:

"No sheep will be allowed to pass through Jackson's Hole over any route under any circumstances. We're prepared for emergencies, and parties who attempt to drive sheep through this country must take the consequences."

The ranchmen [illegible] sheepmen who try to drive across the country will have a fight on their hands.

Will Probably Affiliate With the Federation.

Terre Haute, Ind., May 7.—The lodges of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen throughout the country voted the first of this month on the proposition to affiliate with the American Federation of Labor. The proposition was brought up at the biennial convention at Galveston last summer and was strongly urged by Grand Master Sargent and by President Gompers of the Federation who was present by invitation.

The impression is that the returns will show that the proposition has been carried by more than the necessary two-thirds of the lodges. The affiliation is for fraternal and financial assistance and cannot involve the firemen in a strike or other radical action not authorized by their own laws.

The Maynard Murder Trial.

Lowell, Mass., May 7.—John [illegible] Burke began the closing argument for the defense when the trial of Lorenzo W. Barnes charged with murdering John Deane of Maynard, was resumed at 9.30 this forenoon. The court room was crowded and there was hardly a sufficient number of seats for half the spectators.

Mr. Burke's address was an able one. He said in part: "The only evidence given of what took place inside the Deane house was furnished by Lorenzo W. Barnes and the contest upon this is as to responsibility.

"The court will give you the law in the case, but I want to call your attention to what constituted the various degrees of murder. You must remember also that the mental responsibility of the accused must be considered with the evidence in the jury room.

"You must remember that the accused is as innocent as any man in this court room until every circumstance which shows his guilt and responsibility is proven by the government. There is another rule of evidence to which I call your attention. If there is a single link in the chain of evidence absent, you must reject all and acquit the accused.

"No man has told you he saw the accused in the house of John Deane except himself. The government in circumstantial evidence must prove every material act by a preponderance of evidence."

BREWER LOCALS.

Mr. Allie Miller is acting as clerk in Messrs. Kenney & McMahon's store for a short time.

Frank Doyle, of this city, left last night for Greenville where he has taken a place in the Moosehead Inn.

Miss Emma Ray has returned from Fairfield, where she went to attend the funeral of the late Mr. Cephas Salley.

There will be a game of base ball this afternoon in the tannery field between the Columbias, of this city, and the Volunteers, of Orono.

Mr. Albert Cotton, a pattern maker in the works of the Hinckley & Egery Co. in Bangor, is confined to the house with a sprained hand.

Rev. W. F. Lombard, pastor of the First Baptist church, was called to Turner yesterday forenoon by a telegram that brought the sad news of the death of his sister.

Representatives of the insurance companies in which the burned tannery was insured, who have been in the city adjusting the loss of the plant, completed the work yesterday. The owner, Mr. Frank Corey, was allowed $12,000 out of $14,000, the face of the policies.

Rev. John Heling, wife and daughter, arrived in Brewer from Eastport Friday and are guests of Hon. and Mrs. Frank H. Nickerson on Main street, while the parsonage is being settled. Rev. Mr. Heling will commence his duties as pastor of the Brewer Methodist church to-morrow.

There was a slight blaze Friday forenoon at the Dirigo mill which is run by Hastings & Strickland. The sawdust around the waste furnace in the mill yard caught fire and was burning briskly when discovered. A stream of water from the mill hose was turned on the fire and the flame extinguished without calling out the department.

At the annual meeting of the Brewer Savings Bank the following officers were chosen for the ensuing year: Trustees, Charles O. Farrington, Frank A. Floyd, James H. Smith, Alpheus Robinson and S. H. Woodbury; president, C. O. Farrington; secretary and treasurer, Benj. F. Farrington; Dr. C. L. Thomas and A. A. Kenney were elected corporate members of the board to fill vacancies.

At the South Brewer chapel last evening the farce "The New Woman" was presented for the benefit of the Union Library and the event was well attended. The farce was written by Miss Susan A. Sargent, one of the members of the Union Library Club, and was very amusing, furnishing a pleasant entertainment. It was very nicely presented. In addition to the farce there was a piano duet by Misses Gertrude Bennett and Margaret Walsh, a solo by Miss Walsh and the winding of the May pole by 16 children, all of which were much enjoyed. The cast of characters for the farce was as follows: Mrs. Gray, the new woman, Miss Ada Russell; Elizabeth Gray, Miss Lola F. Wescott; Rose Gray, Miss Frances Sargent; Grace Gray, Miss Nellie F. Mann; Alice Gray, Miss Elizabeth Nickerson; Aunt Mary (Mrs. Morris), Miss Eva Mutty; Edward, her nephew, J. Hopkins; Patty, the maid, Hattie C. Nickerson; Bridget, the cook, Miss Mabel F. Staples; another maid, Miss Helen McGaw. Refreshments were served during the evening.

Death of Duc d'Aumale at Licco, Sicily, Friday Morning.

Funeral of the Victims of the Charity Bazaar Horror.

Paris, May 7—The Duc d'Aumale died at 2 o'clock this morning at his villa at Licco, Sicily, of apoplexy brought on by the shock experienced upon hearing of the death of the Duchess d'Alencon.

Henri Eugene Philippe Louis d'Orleans, Duc d'Aumale, a prince of the family of Orleans, was born in Paris, Jan. [illegible] 1822, and was the fourth son of the late King Louis Philippe and Queen Marie Amelie.

He was educated for the army, and in 1840 he accompanied his brother, the Duc d'Orleans, to Algeria, and took part in the campaign which followed. In 1844 he married Marie Caroline Auguste de Bourbon, daughter of Prince Leopold of Salerno. She died at Twickenham in 1869.

Body of William E. Poole, of Dover, Found in his Orchard

Dover, May 7—Workmen on their way to Mayo [illegible] this morning discovered the body of Mr. William E. Poole suspended from the limb of a tree in his orchard. The man had evidently been [illegible] some time and it was so plainly a case of suicide that no inquest was considered necessary.

Mr. Poole, who was aged 51 years, had been despondent for several weeks and had told his friends that he feared that his people would send him to the asylum. His domestic affairs were particularly happy and he was in comfortable financial circumstances.

Mr. Poole was born in Dover and has been an estimable and respected citizen. Some years ago he was in business with a relative under the firm name of Lowell & Poole, but at the time of his death was employed in Mayo's mill and [illegible] good pay. His family consists of a wife, two daughters and two sons. The inexplicable act of Mr. Poole has been a crushing blow to those devoted people as well as to his friends in business and social life.

—It is remarked upon as a somewhat singular coincidence that Mr. Lowell, who married his aunt and with whom he was associated in business some years ago, committed suicide in a fit of temporary derangement.

Mr. Poole was a member of the M[illegible] order.

Senate's Action on Arbitration Treaty not Officially Published, so England Can't Be Notified

Washington, May 7—The failure of the Senate to make public its action on the arbitration treaty has created an unusual condition of affairs. There is no official information that the Senate has taken any action, nor that the treaty has been rejected, nor that the defeated treaty was different from the one originally submitted.

All that is known officially is that the treaty was concluded by Secretary Olney and Sir Julian Pauncefote and sent to the Senate. That body then went into executive session so that no official information has been given as to the amendment made and the final action taken.

The secrecy of executive session does not permit the state department nor the British government to be notified as to what has occurred. It is felt to be due to the other contracting party to the treaty that some notice should be given as to what has been done and as to the form of the treaty when rejected.

In case the Senate should never make [illegible] action known the last of the record [illegible] would be its submission to the Senate four months ago.

ALL OVER THE STATE.

The driver of two horse team in Gardiner was seen by several passersby cruelly beating one of the horses Thursday morning, until a woman who witnessed the scene remonstrated in righteous anger, declaring that if another stroke was given the animal she should report him to the proper authorities. With a fiercely muttered imprecation the uplifted hand dropped to his side and with a backward glance of hatred not unmixed with defiance the driver passed on, frustrated for a time at least.

Miss Kate Vannah of Gardiner has eight new songs in press, and Miss Ellinora Cooper Bartlett of the same city, has five. Jessie Bartlett Davis recently sent Miss Vannah an order for more songs from her gifted pen, which are a favorite with the famous singer, who also wrote that at the Victor Herbert's recent [illegible] given in Broadway Theatre, New York, she sang two of Miss Vannah's compositions, "Yes, I Do Love You, Dear," and "Over the Hill to Sunlight Town," with great success. The beautiful words of the former piece were written by Dr. A. L. Schoumer, of Gardiner. These two really talented women have good cause to be justly proud of the success of the most pronounced type which is being meted out to them.

Work on completing the Berlin Mills Co. saw mill in Farmingdale is progressing as well as could be wished. The machinery is now nearly all here and in place. The boilers and engine are being placed in position and the material for the [illegible] is on the ground and will be placed in a few days. It is now expected that the mill will start running about June 1, on the arrival of the logs from up river.

H. N. [illegible], president of the Commonwealth Shoe Manufacturing Co., was in Gardiner Thursday. He finds that work on the new factory progressing rapidly. He expects to have the [illegible] of the [illegible] [illegible] work on the main [illegible] floors will be commenced Saturday. When this work is completed, which will probably be in about two weeks, the machinery will [illegible].

More than twenty years have passed away since the sudden and mysterious disappearance of Mrs. Anna Spaulding, and still the disappearance remains as much a mystery as ever to the [illegible] Stone [illegible] of the Oxford County [illegible] She has vanished from our [illegible] as completely as if the earth had suddenly opened and closed over her mortal body and thus summarily cut short her existence. Of what avail to us is it to [illegible] that [illegible] right [illegible] [illegible] know [illegible] terrible fate [illegible] [illegible] What became [illegible]

Fred Bloodgood, a well dressed young man of about [illegible] years, was before the Portland municipal court Thursday morning charged with larceny of goods from six stores. Bloodgood was arrested Wednesday night and before court convened he sent for Attorney [illegible], who [illegible] counsel. Mr. Kelsey [illegible] that he would waive the reading of the warrant and that his client would enter a plea of not guilty. The State had several witnesses. The court found the prisoner guilty in two [illegible] of eight different cases [illegible] For the larceny of goods from Hogan Bros., which amounted to $[illegible], the sentence was 60 days in jail and a fine of $10 and costs; for the larceny of $[illegible] worth of goods from Allen & Co. [illegible] 60 days in jail and a fine of $10 and costs; for the larceny of $[illegible] worth from Davis & Cartland, 30 days in jail; for the larceny of $[illegible] worth from Wyer Greene & Co., 30 days and a fine of $10 and costs; for the larceny of $3 worth from [illegible] W. H. Doughty & [illegible] fine of $10 and costs; for the larceny of $3 worth from John E. Farr [illegible] fine of $10 and costs; for the larceny of $4 worth from Charles L. Moulton & Co. [illegible] days in jail and $20 and costs for the larceny of $[illegible] worth from A. J. Merry & Co. a fine of $20 and costs. Bloodgood is unable to pay any of the fines.

One of the boldest burglaries committed thereabouts for a long time was that at the house of Capt. Herbert Lewis at Pleasantdale Wednesday night. Capt. Lewis, who is master of the bark Annie Lewis, has been at home for about a week from his last trip to South America and he has been carrying considerable money about his person. Wednesday he fortunately deposited the greater part of it and with only about $50 in his pocket he retired to bed at about 11 o'clock, hanging his coat and vest over a chair as usual. Thursday morning it was found that the house had been entered in the night and Capt. Lewis' vest, his brother Almon's trousers and vest and some of the clothing of other members of the family had been taken out of doors and rifled, the burglars getting $50 in money and a valuable gold watch from Capt. Lewis, $[illegible] and another gold watch from his brother's clothes. The house of Lewis Worth [illegible] was also entered, a gold watch, two silver watches and $[illegible] being [illegible] Three tramps who slept in a barn near by have been arrested, but nothing can be found on their persons.

While driving down high street Gardiner Thursday morning the horse driven by [illegible] Jones of West Gardiner became frightened and ran down the street with terrific speed and turning into Winter street collided with an approaching team driven by [illegible] Hunter. The runaway horse was quite seriously injured while both wagons were badly demolished.

The incorporators of the Franklin, Somerset and Kennebec Railroad Company met Thursday afternoon at the town building in Farmington for organization. The following directors were re-elected: Leonard W. Atwood, W. H. Ambler, W. D. Hewitt, all of Philadelphia; Herbert H. Rice, Frank W. Butler, of Farmington; George P. Stinchfield of Farmington Falls; H. B. Prescott of New Sharon. Hon. Leonard Atwood was chosen president and W. H. Ambler treasurer. The capital stock is $100,000. Active operations for the building of the road are being made and the surveyors are at work between Farmington and New Sharon.

Tuesday a man who looked as if he had lost his last friend called at a grocery store in Biddeford and said he wanted something to eat. The proprietor invited him into the meat room and began to cut him off some pressed ham when the stranger objected and said he did not want that. "What do you want?" asked the grocery man, and the beggar said "Some raw meat." Accordingly the grocer cut off a slice of beef steak which weighed a pound and a half, and with a supply of crackers, pickles and cheese the man was soon making a hearty meal. He devoured it all and then asked for another piece of raw steak which was given him.

Two Portland cats got along on very friendly terms until each was blessed by the arrival of several kittens. After this one of the mothers not satisfied with holding her own began to steal her neighbor's kits, bringing them home to her own nest. This the other mother hotly resented and the former friendly relations between the cats are entirely suspended.

Portland is boasting of the fact that her new theatre will be capable of seating more people than any one of seven Boston theatres can. Only three of Boston's theatres can seat more.

President Hichborn, of the Augusta Board of Trade, reports that the prospects of locating a shoe manufactory in the city were never better. Another conference of the committee on manufactures of the board has been held with two business men from Boston, representing large shoe interests and capital. The manufacturers were very favorably impressed with the situation and expect to again visit Augusta in a few days for the purpose of further investigating the building locations and other necessary conditions for locating. The interest in no way has subsided and every effort will be made by all concerned for the introduction of another industry to add to those already there.

Twenty six years ago Saturday, says the Bath Times, the first train was run on the Knox & Lincoln railroad. The paper has the following account of the trip: "The first regular passenger train on the Knox & Lincoln railroad was run this morning to Wiscasset and having made the journey we can affirm that the road is in good order and right men appear to be in right places and this first day of May is radiant with promise to both east and west. A goodly party made the trip over and on the return standing room was at a premium. The ferry system works to perfection and Bath and Wiscasset, at least, have shaken hands with an iron grip." Division Superintendent W. I. White of the K. & L. Division was conductor of the train, Geo. I. Woodbury baggage master and Edward Hall was engineer. The running time for the trip was about twenty five minutes. Two of the old engines in service when the road first started are now in use on the Somerset road.

Workmen while excavating for the cellar of the $10,000 cottage being built at Popham for Charles H. Graham of Providence, R. I., found a paved fireplace about six feet underground, three or four feet above the level [illegible] several feet across and built of stones, which showed very plainly that many a roaring fire had been built in it. The place where it was found is [illegible] feet above the sea level and about a half mile from the present high water mark. They have also unearthed many relics which show very plainly that it was once used by the [illegible].

WRONG TICKET FOR GEN MILES

It Called for a Stateroom Already Taken on the St. Paul—General Porter Sails

When the American liner St. Paul sailed Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock her pier at Fulton street, New York, was filled with friends of the passengers. The floral tributes were numerous and beautiful. Among the passengers was General Horace Porter, United States ambassador to France, who is starting for his post in Paris. His wife and daughter accompanied him. Relatives and many friends, including delegations from the Sons of the American Revolution, G. A. R. and members of the Union League Club, were at the pier. General Porter said that Henry Vignaud would be first and second secretaries of the embassy. He had not decided where he would live while in the French capital. Mr. Scott [illegible] to his two weeks [illegible] the arrangements for a house.

Another passenger was General Nelson A. Miles, who goes abroad to follow the Greco-Turkish military operations. He did not reach the vessel until a short time before she sailed. He rushed down to stateroom No. 1[illegible] with his clerk and there found Mrs. Henry L. Abbey surrounded by her baggage. The General politely suggested that No. 12 might be his room, to which Mrs. Abbey replied with firmness that it was hers. He pulled out his room ticket and she brought forth hers. They both called for stateroom No. 12. The steward was hunted up and the affair was straightened out by the discovery that General Miles had applied for a different stateroom after he had been assigned to No. 12 and had received it.

The General in speaking of his proposed trip said that he had not decided whether he should join the Greek or Turkish army in the field, but he thought it possible that he should study the operations from both sides.

"But this is not the only purpose of my visit to Europe," he said. "I intend to inspect the military posts and fortifications and look over the various gun manufactories, to see what improvements are being made and rapid firing guns. I shall remain abroad several months and on my return will make a special report for my department. I expect to look over the Krupp gun works, a lesser the French arsenal at Toulon and will spend some time examining the coast guard station of Great Britain. I shall go to Germany immediately after my return from the scene of the war in the Levant and I expect to pick up some valuable information in that country. As for the Greco-Turkish war, I have no individual opinion to express at this time. Our War Department is of the opinion that should the war continue there the information to be gained such as the movement of troops, the quartering and endurance of men, the value of certain arms and field guns, etc., will be of immense value."

A man who attracted great attention on the steamer was Abner McKinley. His resemblance to his brother, the President, has several times made him the centre of a curious and demonstrative crowd. It so happened on the St. Paul. At sight of Mr. McKinley word was passed about the ship that the President was on board to see a cousin off. A crowd collected and several wished to shake Mr. McKinley's hand. He carefully explained that he was the President's brother, but still the people would gather about him. He was there to see some friends off.

There was a great congregation of theatrical people at the pier to say farewell to the members of the "Secret Service" company and other lights of the stage. A band was there serenading the departing players, among whom were William Gillette, who goes with his whole company to play "Secret Service" at the Adelphi Theatre, London; Daniel Frohman, Mrs. Henry Harold Swain, the husband of Marguerite Reid, who sang at the Metropolitan Opera House two or three seasons ago and is to sing in the coming season at Covent Garden; Miss Ethel Barrymore, Campbell Gollan, Miss Anna Held, Marcus R. Mayer, J. A. I. Malone, stage manager of the London Gaiety Theatre, who came here a few weeks ago to attend the production of "The Circus Girl" at Daly's; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Dazian, J. H. Ryley, the author of "The Mysterious Mr. Bugle," who goes to London to superintend the production of that play by Charley Hawtrey at the Comedy Theatre; Miss Blanche Walsh, F. Ziegfeld, Jr., and Henry Woodruff.

Among other passengers sailing on the St. Paul were General W. McK. Osborne, United States Consul General at London; John K. Gowdy, United States Consul General at Paris; General Hyde, U. S. A.; Richard Westcott, United States Vice Consul at London; Manton Marble, of London; Edwin S. Cramp of Philadelphia, and Mrs. J. Donald Cameron.

MYSTERY OF THE CABLE CODE

How Vast Numbers of Expressions Are Represented by Single Words

To ordinary folk who have no occasion to use them, the cipher cable codes employed by business houses in sending messages across the ocean are unfathomed mysteries. All that is generally understood on the subject is that firms whose business requires frequent and swift communication with foreign countries have a method of cabling their meaning in a greatly abbreviated form, and that this cipher, besides its economical value, possesses the merit of being unintelligible except to those holding the key to the code by which it is sent.

There are numbers of such codes, differing from one another more or less in form and size, but they must all conform to certain regulations which have been laid down by international agreement among the cable companies. The primary rule is that it is not permissible to send any combination of letters which one may devise, but that only actual dictionary words from some of the languages named in the agreement shall be used. This, however, allows for an infinite number of available words, because eight languages are given from which the compilers of codes may select. These are English, French, German, Spanish, Italian, Portuguese, Dutch and Latin—seven modern languages and an ancient one. The Latin, from a few glances over a huge new code recently published, appears to afford more cipher words than any of the others. The wondrous number of changes which may be rung upon Latin verbs, and which has been the despair of generations of school boys, now finds a new use, for in the code may be found almost complete conjugations of hundreds of verbs, their variations in mood, tense and person being admirable for cipher purposes.

The new code referred to above is known as the "Leviathan," and is published by the Hartfield Telegraph Code Publishing Company. It contains [illegible]700 words, all of which are selected from the regular Official Vocabulary of over 250,000 words from the eight languages, upon which all cable codes must be based. The first 100,000 words of the Leviathan, which include all the cipher words down to the letter "I" (they are alphabetically arranged), are devoted to tables of figures and the remainder of the book to the far more interesting department of phrases or dialogue. It is here that the ingenuity and the laborious task of the code-compiler are made manifest. To make the code complete, so that no matter what communication a firm wishes to send it may be able to find the desired expression among the ciphers, it has been necessary to think of all the thousands of phrases that commercial houses would be likely to employ. The size of the book and the thoroughness with which every section appears to be covered seem to indicate that the work has been successfully done. Of course such a mammoth code as this has been evolved gradually from smaller ones as experience has shown where improvements and additions could be made.

The chapters are all conveniently subheaded under such titles as "Buying," "Selling," "Banking," "Stocks," "Contracts," etc., and a few specimen phrases from the first of these will serve to show the manner of the book's compilation. The sentence "Are we at liberty to buy when we think proper?" is expressed by the single cipher word "Infringido," while "Infringir" stands for the following statement: "Are well supplied but you may buy slowly and cautiously at any material decline." "Ingebracht" signifies "At what price can you probably buy?" and thus the list goes on. There is no connection whatever between the meaning of the sentences and that of the words, which are simply taken as they come in alphabetical order, in whatever language they chance to be. In selecting the list of cipher words, the endeavor was made to choose those, especially in English, which were not common in their literal sense in commercial circles. The danger of having such words as "Advance," "Decline," "Price," etc., would be that they would be likely to be taken occasionally in their real meanings and thus cause confusion. But "Lollipop" and "Busybody," for instance, are used because there would be no danger of their being regarded as anything else than ciphers.

Concerning the length of the words, the only point to be looked after is that they shall not exceed ten letters, because for a word of over that number the cable companies charge double rates. In the Leviathan code care has been taken that the words may not resemble one another too closely, a dissimilarity of at least two letters being required. As one more example of the way in which it has been attempted to provide for every possible kind of communication the word "Ferrexit" may be quoted. It stands for the following sentence: "If you cannot secure good rooms by this steamer, wire me the earliest by which you can. Address me at ——." In this case the sender of the dispatch would merely have to subjoin his address and the message would read "Ferrexit 320 Broadway, N. Y.," or in some such form. Words are sometimes used intentionally in their literal meanings in the despatches in combination with the ciphers, but when this is done the context is always clear enough to prevent any misunderstanding. It might be thought that names would have to be spelled out in their actual form, but cipher words have been provided not only for the names of many places but also for the titles of numbers of the best known commercial firms. The latter in many cases are private ciphers, because each business house has dealings with a different set of firms from any other.

IN THE TOILS

Two Alleged Members of the Bucket Shop Firm Held on Charges of Larceny

Two warrants for the arrest of persons supposed to have been connected with the defunct firm of the E. S. Dean Company of New York were issued on Monday by Magistrate Brann in the Centre street police court, and Wednesday two of the persons named in the warrants were arraigned before the magistrate. They were Albert Goslin and Samuel Keller. Goslin was arrested by Detective Cuff of the district attorney's office as he was leaving the Fulton ferry, on the New York side, and Keller was arrested at his home No. 2[illegible] West 130th street by Detective McNaught. Abraham Levy appeared for Keller and ex-Assistant Corporation Counsel W. A. Sweetser represented Goslin. The complainant in the case is Alfred H. Kemp of Fishkill Landing, N. Y. Kemp alleges that on March 1[illegible] he sent $[illegible]0 to W. D. O'Connor & Co., as the company's agents, and that he has never had any return for the money. He further alleges that he believes Keller and Goslin to be associated with the E. S. Dean Company and the W. D. O'Connor Company, and he therefore charges them with the larceny of $[illegible]0.

Mr. Levy asked Magistrate Brann to adjourn the examination to give time to produce witnesses.

"Will you produce the other persons who are named in the complaint?" asked Magistrate Brann.

"I cannot promise that," said Mr. Levy, "because I do not know them, but I believe that I can bring them here and shall certainly do my best to do so."

Magistrate Brann then set the examination for 2 o'clock next Wednesday afternoon and held the prisoners in $1,000 bail each. Morgan J. Livingston, of No. 7 West Thirty first street, qualified as bondsman in each case. Mr. Levy had this to say after the hearing:

"I am satisfied that the source of these complaints can be traced to Robert A. Ammon, who has in all probability instigated Kemp to make the complaints. The charge is a ridiculous one and we shall be able to clearly establish that Mr. Keller is guilty of no turpitude. We will not permit our client to be shaken down."

Justice Conlan, in the city court chambers, denied an application of Keller for the vacation of an order of arrest issued against him by Chief Justice Van Wyck.

Keller was arrested last month and released in $500 bail in an action brought against him and his firm by Robert A. Ammon, a broker, who alleges that $[illegible] 00 (was) given by him to Keller's firm for speculation in grain, was misappropriated. Keller's attorney asserted that the allegations on which his client was arrested were mere conclusions and not statements of facts, and that the plaintiff failed to set forth the source of his information and the grounds for his belief.

Plaiting

Very narrow plaiting is a favorite dress trimming. A costume of gray camel's hair is made up in a plain princess fashion. The waist closes at one side and the skirt, waist and sleeves are as one enthusiastic young woman expressed it, absolutely smothered in pinked out ruffles of iridescent taffeta. In addition to the plaiting these ruffles are plaited then drawn out a little to make frills which are laid so as to form bands of trimming from shoulders to waist line, the outlines for yokes and to supply the place of the almost collapsed sleeves. One dress has an outlined yoke of very narrow pinked and plaited ruffling. From the seams where the sleeves are sewed in are similar ruffles of varying widths, the lower one being about 11 inches wide and the upper one not over 5 inches wide.—New York Ledger.

To change one's nationality in Russia is not at the command of every purse. The first condition is that you should be a landowner for five years at the shortest, and that during the whole of that period you should have resided upon your property in that country. The next condition is that you should take the oath of allegiance to the czar.

An African Salt Works.

Karembwe is one of the salt making villages. A sandy clay is dug out of the marshes and placed in grass funnels. Water poured on this dissolves the salt. The solution trickles through the green filter into a trough, after which it is boiled and strained, and a fine, large crystal salt is obtained. It is a great trade in this part of the world. All villages make salt, which is put up in loads about five inches in diameter by four feet long. All these people, the Waitawa, are very polite. Most of them hail you with, "Morning!" they do not seem able to [illegible] the "good."—"Glance In the Heart of Africa," in Century.

WHAT WE INHERIT

We are not to blame for. We cannot be held responsible for the dispositions and tendencies which we derive from our ancestors, nor are we responsible for the germs of disease which may manifest themselves in our blood as a heritage from former generations. But we are responsible if we allow these germs to develop into serious diseases which will impair our usefulness and destroy our happiness. We are responsible if we transmit to our descendants the disease germs which it is possible for us to eradicate by the use of Hood's Sarsaparilla, the one true blood purifier. This medicine has power to make rich, red blood and establish perfect health in place of disease.

CITY AND VICINITY.

It is understood that the true sportsmanlike way of enumerating catches of fish this year will be in feet and inches. Thus a man who has enjoyed a good day's fishing may come in and tell his wondering friends that he brought in so many feet or perhaps so many rods of trout. The report of a big catch will sound much more impressive told in this fashion.

A young lady who helps out her father at his business in a Maine city is wondering how she is coming out this summer on the base ball question. She is an enthusiast and goes to the game and compromises are in order, she says. She says she can stamp her foot down real hard when occasion requires and go to the ball game about [illegible] part of the time, anyway.

A little boy's mother sent him down town after a loaf of bread and a pint of milk. He went on his bicycle and when he reached home his clothing was all spattered with milk and the loaf of bread was tucked up inside his sweater. When his mother reproved him for spilling the milk he replied, "Never mind mother, I knew I should spill some on the way home so I got a quart instead of a pint and had it charged to papa."

The reception tendered Rev. B. C. Wentworth, who was returned to the Methodist church at Skowhegan for the current year, was held in the vestry a few evenings since. The vestry had been tastily decorated for the occasion with potted plants, and easy chairs and sofas were scattered about the room in place of the usual settees. After Mr. Wentworth had been introduced to the assembly by the ladies of the reception committee a short musical and literary entertainment was given, including vocal solos by Mr. and Mrs. Albert Wilson and J. N. Smith, two piano solos by Mrs. J. N. Merrill and several recitations. Remarks were also made by Mr. Wentworth and Mr. Judson Lockard. It was a very pleasant affair.

The insurance commissioner was at the State House Thursday having returned from Portland on the evening previous where he had a consultation regarding the investigation of fires with Mayor Randall of that city, the city marshal and the chairman of the city fire department. He was more than pleased with the reception he got there. He said: "They are ready to do anything and everything there for the prosecution of incendiaries and are eager to do what is possible in pursuance of the law for the investigation of fires. From the Portland gentlemen that I saw, the only criticism of the municipal officers of other cities, the new law will start right. What is wanted is an immediate investigation of the fires. I only hope that the officers of every city and town in the State will take right hold with a vim and unite in hunting down the incendiary."

The Skowhegan Board of Trade met at the office of Danforth & Gould Tuesday evening pursuant to a call by Secretary Pitter, to take measures to induce the Maine Central Railroad Company to continue the noon freight train into that town as it has been run to the great advantage of business for several summers past. It has been understood that this train was not to be put on this season, and that this direct train from Boston was to stop at Waterville. The matter was talked over generally and S. W. Gould, Esq., president of the board and L. H. Anderson, vice president, were delegated by the board to go to Portland and lay the matter before Mr. Evans, general manager of the road, and F. L. Curtis was appointed to secure the names of business men of the village in favor of the train.

Joseph Fitzmorris of Carratunk entered a complaint against Charles Ford, Daniel Lee and John W. Wheeler, Tuesday alleging that they stole money to the amount of $[illegible] from his pockets while he was intoxicated. Warrant was issued and they were brought before Trial Justice O. R. Bachelder at Skowhegan. After vigorous denials on the part of Ford and Lee, who are boys about 18 years old, they acknowledged that they had abstracted about $1 from the pockets of the complainant. There was no evidence that Wheeler had anything to do with the larceny but there was evidence that he was at the time in Hill's stable where the larceny took place. The amount being above $20 the justice could only hold the parties for the grand jury in September or discharge them, and upon agreement that the three parties accused would refund to Fitzmorris the $[illegible] he took the latter course and the county pays costs amounting to ten or a dozen dollars, to be charged up to its rum bills. The boy Lord is already under bonds to appear at the S. J. Court term on a charge of larceny.

A Catfish in a Log

Henry Heinrich, a well known and reliable farmer who lives on the Moreau river twelve miles from Jefferson City, Mo., tells the most remarkable fish story ever related. The beauty of the story, aside from its singularity, is that it is absolutely true, a feature that is utterly lacking in a majority of piscatorial anecdotes.

A few days ago Mr. Heinrich and one of his sons were fishing in the Moreau. They were standing on the trunk of a big sycamore tree that had fallen out over the stream and was partly submerged in the water. A peculiar bumping noise that came from the inside of the log attracted their attention and they began to investigate. They supposed at first that there was some sort of a wild animal in the hollow of the log, and on cutting it open were astounded to find that it was a sixty five pound catfish.

The fish had evidently made a trip into the hollow log during high water and did not attempt to get out until after the freshet had gone down, and then was stranded, as there was not sufficient water in the log to permit his exit. It was a blue channel cat and furnished choice steaks for the farmer's table for a week or more.

MRS. KRINER'S LETTER

About Change of Life.

"I suffered for eight years and could find no permanent relief until one year ago. My trouble was Change of Life. I tried Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and relief came almost immediately. I have taken two bottles of the Vegetable Compound, three boxes of Pills and have also used the Sanative Wash, and must say, I have never had anything help so much. I have better health than I ever had in my life. I feel like a new person, perfectly strong. I give the Compound all the credit. I have recommended it to several of my friends who are using it with like results. It has cured me of several female diseases. I would not do without Mrs. Pinkham's remedies for anything. There is no need of so much female suffering. Her remedies are a sure cure."—Mrs. ELLA KRINER, Knightstown, Henry Co., Ind.

WILLIAM MITCHELL INJURED
Flying Piece of Ledge Breaks His Leg

William Mitchell who lives on French street had his leg broken on Friday He was at work with other men on Thomas hill blasting out a trench in which the principal main to the standpipe to be erected on the hill will be laid After the blast a piece of ledge weighing about two pounds flew and struck Mitchell's left leg below the knee breaking it in two places and badly shattering the bones Mitchell stood 170 feet from the blast and other men much nearer than he were uninjured

The usual precaution to keep the rocks from flying had been taken There were twenty one large hemlock logs in the trench and a large amount of brush and it was all heavily chained together Several men were quite near to the blast and what rocks went into the air went over their heads Only one large piece was thrown into the air and that landed in a field on the southerly side of Highland avenue

Mitchell fell on his face when the rock struck his leg and when the blast was over the men saw him lying on the ground They rushed to his assistance, and a physician was at once summoned He bandaged the leg and the injured man was removed to the hospital Mitchell is a man about 60 years of age

MOTHERS recovering from the illness attending childbirth, or who suffer from the effects of disorders, derangements and displacements of the womanly organs, will find relief and a permanent cure in Dr Pierce's Favorite Prescription. Taken during pregnancy, the "Prescription" makes childbirth easy, by preparing the system for parturition, thus assisting Nature and shortening "labor." The painful ordeal of childbirth is robbed of its terrors and made almost painless, and the dangers thereof greatly lessened to both mother and child. The period of confinement is also greatly shortened, the mother strengthened and built up, and an abundant secretion of nourishment for the child promoted. If the married woman be delicate, run-down or overworked, it worries her husband as well as herself. This is the proper time to build up her strength and cure those weaknesses, or ailments, which are the cause of her trouble. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription dispels aches and pains, melancholy and nervousness, brings refreshing sleep and makes a new woman of her.

PENOBSCOT CENTRAL.

Hearing on Location of the Line in Bangor.

Opposition to Location in West Market Square and Other Streets.

The Railroad Commissioners, Hon J B Peaks Hon B F Chadbourne and Hon Frederick Danforth, gave a hearing yesterday, beginning at 10 a m, in the Common Council room, City Hall, on the location of the projected Penobscot Central Railway as surveyed and laid out by the engineers of the corporation There was a large attendance of citizens of this city and a strong opposition to the location of the track as laid out through West Market Mercantile and Pickering squares and Broad street was developed The railroad was represented by its counsel, Hon Herbert M Heath of Augusta, and the remonstrants were represented by Charles H Bartlett Esq, and C P Stetson Esq, of this city

Mr Heath in presenting his petition for the approval of the location of the road said that he wished to make a statement as to the scope of the hearing He said that under the special act under which the road was laid out the commissioners had jurisdiction over the location in the streets in the country towns through which it runs of the rails but that they had no jurisdiction over the location in Bangor, that being given by the special act to the municipal officers The second section of the act he said required the commissioners' approval of the whole road as to the question of public convenience and necessity He asked leave to file some slight amendments to the petition for location in the country towns and also one giving the road location in Harlow street in this city as far as the center of Cumberland street instead of to the foot of Curve street as in the original petition to be given a hearing on later He also filed the record of the final action of the municipal officers of Bangor on the location in this city

At Mr Heath's request Mayor Beal was sworn as a witness and in reply to questions by the counsel stated that in his opinion there would be passenger and freight business enough along the line to warrant its construction Mr Heath said that the construction of the road was in conflict with no other railroad and it would make connections with the Boston & Bangor S S Co and the Maine Central Railroad The gap in the locations made from Cumberland street to West Market Square was to be filled by the use of the rails of the B O & O line between those points His request for permission to file amendments to the petition was granted and a hearing on them will be ordered

Charles H Bartlett, Esq said that he and his colleague C P Stetson Esq appeared on behalf of a large number of remonstrants to the location of the tracks in Bangor as made, particularly to their location through West Market, Mercantile and Pickering squares He said that business in those squares would be greatly injured by the location of the road there He did not agree with Mr Heath regarding his construction of the law relating to the jurisdiction over the location of the tracks and believed that the special law was controlled to a certain extent by the general law The commissioners were he said, the final board of revision the second section of the special law providing that the road could not begin business until approved in its entirety by them

He said that his clients had been given no opportunity for a hearing on the subject up to the present hearing He said that in no city in the State was there a district so much congested as regards travel as at the foot of Hammond street and he did not believe it was right to allow the running of freight cars through such a crowded locality He spoke of a terminus for the road in East Market square and said that his position was that the road should be built outside of the congested district

Mr Heath said he should object to the introduction of any testimony on the part of the opposition but Mr Bartlett demanded the right and Mr Heath withdrew his objection Chairman Peaks stated that the testimony would be allowed anyway

Hon C L Bragg was the first witness called He thought the question one of much importance He said that private interests should be subject to the interests of the public, but that when corporations asked public privileges the interests of the people should be guarded in granting them He said that never before in the history of Bangor had such an important matter as the location of this road in the city been passed at a special meeting of the municipal officers called for another purpose as this was—passed without giving the citizens a chance for a hearing Instead of going down Broad street, the direct route the line is laid out by agreement between the corporation and three aldermen to go around the block to convenience these three aldermen Although he did business on Broad street, he said he believed if the road went down that way it should go by way of that street rather than around through the squares He thought East Market square would be a reasonable terminus for the road, or that it should reach the terminus at present projected by going through less congested streets

Hon John B Foster said he could not see why the road should be allowed to turn out through these squares and that he had been told that the corporation desired to go through Broad street He thought there must be some appeal from the action of the city government and that it should be taken, as the proposed location would result in great injury to trade in the squares

Other witnesses followed who all testified to the effect that the location of the road through the squares would in their opinion seriously injure business there A large proportion of the business houses there depend almost wholly on country trade which the advent of electric cars there would drive away in addition to further congested travel there Among those called were Messrs W H Patterson, Arad Thompson, Geo I Wescott and C P Gallagher

Aldermen C F. Ward and W. B Pierce stated that they were not present at the meeting of the municipal officers at which the location of the road was finally passed and they wished to act for the best interests of the people in the matter The former thought the road should not be allowed to pass through these congested districts

Mr J C Towle spoke in opposition to the location of the road through Broad street saying that the street was but 40 feet wide from curb to curb and that it would be a great hindrance to business there A few years ago, he said when the Public Works Co. wished to run its tracks there the matter was investigated by the municipal officers and the petition refused. He said that the running of the tracks there would be especially detrimental in the winter on account of the snow that would be heaped on both sides of the road for some days after each storm.

Mr. J. E. Dunning also spoke in opposition to the track in Broad street and his remarks called forth the statement from Mr. Bartlett that he and his colleagues and their clients did not have as their object the changing of the location from the squares to Broad street but a change to another locality entirely The suggestions in regard to the change were to either make the terminus of the road in East Market square and connections with the railroad on that side of the stream or to have it use the tracks of the Public Works Co up Main street and go down Union street

Mr Heath asked Mr Beal how many times the location of the road was before the municipal officers Mayor Beal stated that the matter was up four times He also stated that he did not believe that the impugnment of the motives of three of the aldermen was just also that if the remonstrants wanted a hearing on the matter they could have it

Mr Bartlett asked the mayor if any public notice of the meeting at which final action was taken was given, to which the latter replied that public notice was never or hardly ever given of a meeting of the municipal officers Mr Heath asked Mr Bartlett if he or his clients had ever asked for a hearing on the subject but the colloquy was cut short by Chairman Peaks who said that the commissioners were not to be influenced by motives or actions but wished to ascertain the equities in the matter

C P Stetson, Esq, then made the closing argument for the remonstrants He said that when a railroad had a choice of two routes one of which encroached on the rights of others to a greater extent than the other the latter should be chosen There was no city in the State where there was more congestion than in those squares and the location of the railroad in them would be a serious detriment to business There were two ways out of the difficulty The first would be to make the terminus of the road in East Market square and the second to use the Main and Union street route suggested If the commissioners were to inquire into the question of expediency and public convenience he would like to have them look into this He and his associate represented a large number of business men who do a large proportion of the business of the city and it surely would have been only common courtesy to have given them a hearing

He differed with Mr Heath as to the question of the jurisdiction claiming that the general law applied to the matter to a certain extent and that as the second section of the special act on the subject provided that the road must be approved by the commissioners that they had the right to withhold their approval in case any portion of its location was not satisfactory or did not seem proper to them until such time as it was made satisfactory He read from the law on the subject and cited cases in support of his position

After the close of Mr Stetson's argument the session was adjourned for dinner assembling again at 2 30 p m when Mr Heath made his argument in closing for the corporation

He said that it was the evident intention of the opposition to prevent the building of the road as the plans proposed by its counsel were of such a nature as would make it impracticable to build the road if they were forced upon the corporation If the terminus was made at East Market square and the road had no direct connection with the Boston boats and Maine Central railroad it would make it impossible for freight to be taken at a profit and would make the road a passenger line only and it would not pay the interest on its bonds The Main street route was not feasible or convenient on account of the two heavy grades it involved

He thought the objection to the line on the ground that freight was to be carried was not a valid one as the passage of cars would not be frequent enough to be of any serious detriment to business

He said that the argument that the procedure was subject to the general law of 1897 was wrong The special act on the subject went into effect March 20th and he filed the petition in the case on April 24th two days before the general law of 1897 took effect He did this with malice aforethought, he said He did not think that the cases cited by Mr Stetson furnished any precedent for the present one He believed that the principle of the greatest good to the greatest number should prevail and did not think that the commissioners would veto the whole road on account of the short section in question

This argument closed the hearing and the commissioners afterwards visited Broad street and the squares and investigated the conditions there Their decision will be given out later Another hearing will be held later on the amendments to the petition filed by Mr Heath

BODY RECOVERED
Remains of Sylvester Tebbo Who Was Drowned on April 27th Found

William Moriarty, the well known guide, came to Bangor on Friday and notified the owners of the drive of the Nahmakanta Lumber Company of the drowning of Sylvester Tebbo who was employed on the drive, on April 27 and of the finding of the remains on Thursday Tebbo had been at work only about two hours when the drowning took place while he was at work on a jam of logs on Nahmakanta stream near Howe falls The remains were found by Moriarty a short distance below the spot where the accident took place Moriarty started for Norcross with the body, which was badly decomposed, in a canoe and arrived at noon When Tebbo came on the drive there were three or four friends with him and Thursday forenoon they desired to accompany the remains of their companion to Norcross

When they arrived at Norcross and the train came along for Bangor they went on board and have not been seen since. Moriarty came to Oldtown on the night train and learned that the men were there but he did not succeed in finding them One of the men belonged in the same town that Tebbo came from

Moriarty after arriving in Oldtown notified Coroner Lancaster of the accident and the latter told him to have the body buried at Norcross until the dead man's relatives could be found If they are not found the remains will be permanently interred there

The owners of the drive will use every effort to learn of the whereabouts of the dead man's relatives so that the remains can be forwarded to them Tebbo was about 22 years of age and it is thought he belonged in New Brunswick.

SUICIDE AT ORONO.

Mrs. Fred Patrick Took "Rough on Rats" Friday.

The Act Soon Discovered but All Efforts to Save Her Life Failed.

Mrs Adelaide Patrick wife of Fred Patrick, of Orono died in that town yesterday afternoon having taken Rough on Rats with suicidal intent

Physicians were summoned as soon as the fact became known and used every effort but were unable to save her life

There are certain reports as to the probable cause of the rash act but at this writing we are unable to verify any of them

She leaves a husband but no children

BASE BALL
Portland Beat M S C 25 to 2 On Friday

The Portland team of the Maine league played Maine State College at Orono yesterday afternoon before a good sized assemblage and had a picnic to the tune of 25 to 2 The collegians had a decidedly off day, making 12 errors and only 2 hits while the Portlands were making about 14 hits and 1 errors Only six innings were played.

Engel and Nichols were the battery for Portland and Cushman and Palmer for M S C The weather was rather cool for good ball playing and the fumbling of the collegians was doubtless due in a large measure to that condition, but they had some hard batting to handle The Portlands left for Portland on the 8 o clock train last evening

Catcher Schreerongost, of the Brockton team has been released to the Augustas

Bobby Moore is giving excellent satisfaction in Springfield Mass

Joel Leighton is playing with Leading, as are Slater and Joel Nevell

Bill Ladd won a new hat by cracking out the first home run made by a Fall River player

The Hartford team has a New England aspect with Radford Shannon Doherty, McNulty and Roach, three of whom were of last year's Bangors

Manager Stallings of Philadelphia, is highly pleased with the work of Wheeler Boston was urged to take a chance on this player

Rochester could get but four hits off Cramp Morse on Tuesday

Young Hayes who wrote to Lewiston from St Johns has been signed by Rockland

The first ball game at Maplewood will be on Thursday of next week when the M S C team will play the Bangors of the Maine League The Bangors will report here the first of the week A large crowd will doubtless attend in order to get a line on the coming champions of the State An advertisement appears in another column

THE STAND PIPE.

Water Board Votes to Give the Contract to the New Jersey Steel & Iron Company

A meeting of the Water Board was held yesterday afternoon to take into consideration the standpipe matter Mr H L Jones engineer of the New Jersey Steel & Iron Company, of Trenton, N J, was present It will be remembered that this company was the lowest bidder for the standpipe last year

The following vote was passed

Voted That the mayor be and he is hereby authorized and directed at the proper time when the same may be legally done to execute for and in behalf of the City of Bangor with the New Jersey Steel and Iron Company of Trenton, N J a contract for the construction of a standpipe for the City of Bangor, prices not to be higher than said bid of August, 1896, and at price of steel to-day, Mr Lower to determine deductions to be made for changes in design, if any, and for difference in price of steel between August last and to-day

Mr Jones told a Whig representative that the standpipe would be the largest in the country that he knew of, being 50 feet high and 75 feet in diameter It will hold 1 700 000 gallons of water The company's bid was $20 500 and the cost will be about that amount although it may vary a few hundred dollars owing to a change in the price of steel It will take four months from the time of the signing of the contract to have the stand pipe ready for use

People in general [illegible] not understand the doings of [illegible] of nature. Especially [illegible] are apt to conclude [illegible] the objects of his search [illegible] concealed the purpose of seeking a buried treasure for that is the only thing that would induce them to dig Mr A L Adams relates an amusing instance of this reasoning.

While excavating a large cavern on the southern coast of Malta we had dug a trench in the soil of its floor some six feet in depth in quest of organic remains The natives in the vicinity hearing of our presence came in numbers daily to witness the proceedings, interrogating the workmen with reference to the object of our exploration, of which the workmen were about as ignorant as themselves.

One afternoon three stalwart fellows paid us a visit and while they sat on the top of dirt staring down into the dry ditch below I dropped a Spanish dollar on a shovelful of earth and the next moment it lay with the soil on the top Picking it up in a careless manner I put it into our luncheon bag and a few minutes afterward our friends disappeared muttering to one another as they went

Great was our amusement the next morning to find that our trench had been carried fully four feet below the level we had gained on the previous evening Not only that several other excellent sections of the floor had been made by the natives in expectation of finding buried treasure —Youth's Companion

London Barber Shops

An interesting feature of the east end barber shops is the rack of pigeonholes filled with shaving mugs each bearing usually in German text the name of the owner The shaving mug is evidently esteemed a valuable advertising medium for many a mug bears in addition to the owner's name some emblem of his business The undertaker puts on his mug the picture of a richly appointed hearse with all the proper trappings of woe The butcher decorates his mug with shoulders of mutton pigs' heads and linked sausages The dentist displays the tradition of a double row of annoyingly perfect teeth The fireman's mug bears the illuminated picture of a fire engine

Vain and handsome men adorn their cups with photographs of themselves. Others place beneath their names some inscription—a sentiment from the poets or an old German rhyme of good cheer A child's photograph occasionally appears on a shaving mug and now and then a coat of arms is emblazoned above the owner's name for coats of arms are as abundant in the east end as elsewhere in town Sometimes it is a national coat of arms German Austrian Swiss or Italian displayed in honor of the deserted fatherland —Pearson's Weekly

Like a Boy

The son of a down town merchant was found crying when his father returned home last night as that gentleman told a reporter this morning.

"What's the matter Tommy?" asked the merchant.

"I had a fight with Charlie" was the tearful reply

"Well, you ought not to fight. It served you right to get whipped, I guess" said the father

"But I didn't get licked I licked him" sobbed the boy

"Well what are you crying about then?"

"Why, if I had let him lick me he couldn't hurt. And I never thought about that so now I have to fight his big brother about my size, and I can lick him and I'm going to, because I'm mad at him Then I've got to fight the biggest brother, and he's three sizes bigger than me, and won't I catch it!" And Tommy refused to be comforted.—Washington Star

House Plants.

Many a little woman nearly cries her eyes out because her house plants die inch by inch when she "takes such good care of them." The fact of the matter is, house plants in gaslighted rooms simply die a death of torture. You will have to give up gas or the plants.

GREAT GAME SEASON.

All Indications Point to It—The Registration of Guides

As a good many letters of inquiry are being received by the fish and game commissioners asking how to proceed to procure a certificate as a registered guide the commissioners state that they have prepared a blank that will give the necessary information on which the application can and should be made which will be sent all guides upon application All that is necessary is to send to either of the commissioners for one of these blanks, fill it out and return it to the commissioners when the application will receive the immediate attention of the commissioners

Guides unknown to either of the commissioners will be required to furnish the recommendation of reputable citizens who are acquainted with them

Some time during June one or more of the commissioners will be at all the principal fishing and hunting resorts of which notice will be given to enable guides to apply personally for registration Guides need not wait however as they may become registered by following the above directions

Every indication points to a great season for fishing and hunting Game of all kinds wintered well and the commissioners believe there has been less poaching than usual Our lakes and ponds teem with salmon and trout in greater numbers than ever before They ask all guides to co-operate in the great work of properly protecting the fish and the game and to work together to make our State the great hunting and fishing resort of the nation as they easily can by seeing to it that our fish and our game are properly protected
